Director of Engineering Operations

Digital Lumens is a pioneer in developing and implementing next-generation LED lighting solutions. They're taking a game-changing approach to the industrial lighting market. With the introduction of the first Intelligent Lighting System, the company is combining LEDs, networking, and software into a single, integrated system that reduces customers' lighting-related energy use by up to 90 percent.

Fast-Paced Growth Drives Need for Data Protection

Digital Lumens has experienced incredible growth over the past five years. As they've continually added new employees their need for data protection and recovery has increased. Alan Harrington, Director of Engineering Operations at Digital Lumens, manages everything from IT and QA to customer service.

"At Digital Lumens, we use cloud-based software to run our business, whether it's G Suite for email and collaboration or Salesforce to manage sales data. We need to ensure that our data is protected from occurrences like accidental deletions, user errors, and malicious activity. Using Backupify was an easy decision for us."

Backupify Offers the Protection We Need

"We found Backupify 3 years ago after an employee inadvertently deleted all of their emails, documents, and calendars from their G Suite account, highlighting the need for this type of solution. Since implementing Backupify for G Suite, we've been extremely happy with the product. It's saved us on several occasions from accidental deletions and data loss," explained Harrington.

Backupify Makes It Easy to Protect Our Data

With Backupify, Harrington can spend less time worrying about SaaS data loss and focus on the work Digital Lumens is doing each day. He concluded, "We are always looking for solutions to make our processes more streamlined and Backupify makes my life easier. It's easy to set up – allowing me to easily add new users in no time and Support is excellent. We have the security we need to protect our data and recover key information, if necessary."
